Cotton Growers of This Country Negligent in Their Ginning.

MANCHESTER MAKES PROTEST

Asks Secretary Houston to Bring About Reform in Methods.

Washington, July 12.—Secretary Houston, of the Department of Agriculture, received a protest to-day from the Manchester (England) Cotton Association against the practice of certain American ginneries of mixing various staple cottons in the same bale. "You will appreciate," said the letter of protest, "the serious consequences that this growing practice must have upon the quality of the American crop, thereby effectively reducing its monetary value."

Secretary Houston is urged to make representations to the cotton exchanges of the South, asking them to inform the ginneries of the necessity of keeping different seed cottons of various staples separate and not to gin different qualities together.

At the department it was pointed out that the trouble has been largely to the disadvantage of the American ginner to take the time after ginning one kind of cotton to clean out the ginning machine before he introduces another staple. It was said that the value of a bale is often lessened from $1.50 to $4 by resultant mixture of grades.

It is pointed out that cotton merchants sample from each side of the bale, and rate it by the worst side, so that the mixture of cotton in the first layer of a bale would result in such a low being estimated for all the bale, probably only ten or twenty pounds of it might be mixed staple. Even if the second run of cotton is short staple, it loses in value by having the first layer mixed with the other kind.

The department urges particularly upon cotton growers to limit their cotton growing to one variety, or else provide themselves with seed cotton of a single staple. When these steps are taken, the cotton producer can take a large quantity at one time to the gin and be certain it will not be mixed with previous runs. Where, however, he takes only a small quantity of cotton to the gin, the bales may have a first layer of mixed cotton.

It also urges upon cotton producers that if they cannot provide themselves with seed cotton of a single staple, they should at least endeavor to insure that the ginners clean out the ginning machine and take the old roll of previous cotton out before ginning new cotton. This would probably cost the ginner a loss of one or two cents a day, but where frequent changes in cotton are run, the losses to the producers may well amount to $50 or more a day.

PETROLEUM PRODUCTION.

Three Southern States Show Marked Increase in 1912 Over 1911.

There was an increase in the production of petroleum in the United States in 1912 of 2,598,215 barrels over 1911. The increase in the South was 1,057,988 barrels, notwithstanding the decrease of 1,456,951 barrels in the Louisiana production. Oklahoma, which is erroneously classified by some papers, and some statisticians, as a Southern State, suffered a decrease in petroleum of 455,951 barrels, as compared with the production of 1911. The production in the South for the States in the two years is shown in the following table:

	1911.	1912.
Kentucky.....	472,458	454,358
Louisiana.....	9,570,951	8,114,999
Texas.....	2,474,474	1,174,957
West Virginia.....	9,756,454	12,128,962

Totals..... 26,014,818 28,611,826

For the period 1909-1912, 44,456 barrels was the largest in this State since 1909; in Texas, 11,735,957 barrels, the largest since 1907, and in West Virginia, 12,128,962 barrels, the largest since 1907. The increase in these three States in 1912 over 1911 was a decrease of 1,456,951 barrels in Louisiana. The greatest increase in any one State in the country was 1,316,376 barrels in California, and the greatest decrease was 4,217,180 barrels in Oklahoma. High prices for petroleum ruled in 1912, except in California, and even in that State there was no material decline. The total value, therefore, increased markedly, reaching $164,057,242, or 22.41 per cent above the value for 1911.

Boy Terribly Injured.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Winchester, Va., July 12.—Russell Rosenberg, twenty years old, son of Asa L. Rosenberg, of this county, lay in a precarious condition in Memorial Hospital to-night as a result of a fall of about eight feet from a high line of the Quaker Cavalry equipment near town. Two wheels passed over his chest, back and legs and several bones were broken. He also suffered internal injuries. Physicians say he may recover. Just a year ago a younger brother, Shirley, was killed by having both legs cut off by a hay mow which was being operated by his father.

The Mere Reading of this Article May Change the Destiny of Your Life

A thorough explanation of unseen power. The power that controls the commercial world and our banking system. The power that keeps the universe in balance. This is not a fairy tale, but a truth that stands before the people of Richmond, Va., and the world undogmatically. There has been many testimonies and different statements printed in the daily papers, but none that will compare with these few words from Mr. William Lavender, who resides at 623 North Laurel Street. He was saved from a life of torture, and says that he owes his life to the Quaker remedy. Mr. Lavender has been in the railroad service for fourteen years, and has been a constant sufferer with stomach trouble. He spent no time or money in trying to regain his health. He was treated by many noted physicians, and has taken different remedies and treatments too numerous to mention, but all the different treatments seemed to do little or no good, and seemingly his destiny was to continue to suffer that untold agony of bloating and belching after eating a third, fourth or fifth of a morning, a painful sensation in the pit of the stomach, and at times a stomachic lump of lead in the throat, which would cause him to have blind, dizzy spells; he had given up hope of ever getting relief until he heard of and read of Gray's Quaker Health Teacher, who is at the Quaker Health Store, and what great results from their unseen power. He concluded to try once more, so he called on Gray, the Quaker Health Teacher, and was assured that the Quaker Health Teacher would cure stomach

SOUTHERNERS ARE IN SADDLE AT CAPITOL

They are Leading in Handling of Four Big Subjects Before Congress.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Washington, July 12.—There are now four big subjects before the American Congress—the tariff, the currency question, and the House and Senate lobby investigation, and at the head of each of these prosides a Southerner. This fact was brought to light here to-day by a discussion of national affairs, when a group of well-known politicians gathered in a cozy corner of one of Washington's best known hotels. Such a thing has probably not existed before—certainly not for a great many years—and is worthy of note.

North Carolina has her two Senators, Overman and Simmons, presiding over the Senate lobby investigation, and the destinies of the tariff bill, the latter being chairman of the Finance Committee. It is extremely doubtful if any one State ever before was able to boast such a condition that of having lower the price of the tariff bill, and the other as presiding officer of the most important investigations which Congress has ever undertaken.

On the House side of the Capitol, Congressman Glass, another Southerner, presiding over the Old Dominion, while presiding over the sessions of the Banking and Currency Committee, and Tennessee's Representative Garrett as the man who will bring important secrets from the much-disputed Mulhall and others who will be called upon to testify from time to time.

While the present extra session of Congress shows other Southern members occupying high positions, right here a spotlight is on the four just mentioned—Simmons, Overman, Garrett and Glass. In a way, much of the administration's success will depend upon their efforts. The currency and the tariff bills are the Democratic party's most available assets. Upon these questions depend the future success of the party.

GINGER FARM CHARTERED.

Norton Celebrated the Glorious Fourth in a Strictly Business Way.

Norton, Va., July 12.—The Norton Gingers Company has been organized, and every dollar of the capital stock was promptly taken by Norton business men. The north side of "Stone Mountain," near the town, produces the roots of the highest quality. R. F. Carr, of Cumulated Gap, has been a successful grower of ginseng for over twenty-five years. He is in charge of the Norton enterprise. The company has purchased fifty acres of Stone Mountain land, and when it is fully settled will be the largest ginseng farm in the world. The plants will be grown in the woods just as nature fixed it. The roots do not do near so well in ground artificially prepared.

The street parade gotten up by the business men of Norton on the glorious Fourth would have done credit to any city. Every home was decorated with bunting, and the business men of the town, two wheels passed over his chest, back and legs and several bones were broken. He also suffered internal injuries. Physicians say he may recover. Just a year ago a younger brother, Shirley, was killed by having both legs cut off by a hay mow which was being operated by his father.

WONDERFUL DREAM OF PAN-SLAVISM

Count Spiridovitch Has Great Plans for Future of His People.

HOLDS TREMENDOUS POWER

This Archconspirator May Be Able to Make His Vision Real.

Paris, July 12.—There is at this moment on the heights of Montmartre the most persistent conspirator of the age. Professionally he is not in concealment, but he is safer from those who are seeking him than if he were in a cave. The conspirator is General Count Arthur Tcherup Spiridovitch.

On the eve of hostilities between Turkey and the four Balkan allies, General Spiridovitch took up his abode near the top of the artistic mount, and has not come down since. Up to that date he lived in fashionable hotels and mingled with the butterfly throng. Since that time he has worked day and night telegraphing here, cabling there, directing fifty-six Slav societies how to make their influence felt most effectively.

Pol, by descent, Russian by birth, he has the fire of the former and the naivete of the latter. He is an adventurous-looking man, the conspirator of classic fantasy. Four times he has been elected president of the Slav Society of Moscow, and it is the fifty-six branches of this organization which give him so much secret power.

His Gigantic Program. The gigantic program he has mapped out would look ridiculous if we did not know of this famous conspirator's predictions in the past. For instance, he foresaw the triple entente as an offset to the triple alliance. Last August, in the Paris Journal, he declared most emphatically that the Russo-Balkan War was about to break.

Nor does this archconspirator always confine himself to predictions. When France and the attack were at their most serious together, Germany wished to replace the former as protector of the Christians in the Orient. Everything was arranged for the transfer. It would have enlarged Germany's sphere of influence. The Emperor telegraphed it. The archconspirator sent a telegram to the Vatican declaring that such a transfer would alienate millions of Slavs who were most devoted to the Holy See. The transfer was made.

And now that Count Spiridovitch's prophecy? Three things they almost take one's breath away. The first is a southern Slav empire, composed of all of the countries whose liberation from Turkey was obtained by the Balkan allies, including Bulgaria, Serbia, Montenegro, all the territories they have taken in the late war, Bosnia, Herzegovina, Albania, Poland, Croatia and the Czech country.

Secondly, he proposed to break up the empire which Hungary has inherited. This would give Hungary her independence and let the Slavs of the Austrian empire join the new confederation.

Poland Independent.

The third proposition is the independence of Poland as an integral state of the confederacy. Here Russia, Austria and Germany would have to give their respective portions of Poland. The Slav empire of the south would hold back the Slav empire of the north. Asiatics are again looking to European contact. They may attempt, says this magnificent dreamer, what Genghis Khan and Timur did in the thirteenth century.

The great Slav empire of the north will fight them back. Were ever such splendid dreams dreamt before? Nor does the dream stop here. Then all these things will be accomplished, the dream of Pan-Slavism, as interpreted by General Spiridovitch, is universal peace. He says:

Pan-Slavism wishes neither to annex nor to oppress. It wishes to reign of peace through liberty and fraternity. Its ideal is to see the tribunal of the Hague in full working action.

Geologists Have Very Busy Season

Vast Amount of Work Turned Out by Survey at University.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Charlottesville, July 12.—This is a busy summer for the Virginia Geological Survey, of which Dr. Thomas J. Watson, professor of geology at the University of Virginia, is director. Several bulletins and reports are now in press and others are nearing completion.

Two important publications by Dr. Watson and Justus H. Cline have just appeared. They are of especial scientific value, and both deal with unusual geological occurrences in this State. The first has been issued by the Philosophical Society of the University of Virginia, and is entitled, "Normal Faulting in the Cambrian of Northern Piedmont, Virginia." The second, entitled, "Petrology of a Series of Igneous Dikes in Central Western Virginia," has been published in a large bulletin by the Geological Society of America.

Both of these contributions represent many months of careful work on the part of Dr. Watson and Mr. Cline. They combine a mass of detailed information which gives the work unusual value.

Other publications now being issued by the Virginia Geological Survey include the following: "Geology of the Gold Belt in the James River Basin of Virginia," by the University of Virginia, and "The Slate Deposits of Virginia," by the University of Virginia.

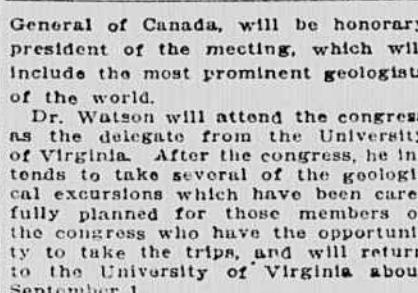

In the fall the following articles will be published: "The Copper Deposits of the Virginia District of Virginia," by the University of Virginia, and "The Slate Deposits of Virginia," by the University of Virginia.

Dr. Watson will leave Charlottesville in August to attend the twelfth International Geological Congress, which will meet from August 7 to the 14 at Toronto, Canada. This place was finally decided upon for the congress instead of Ottawa, which was first considered.

ANSWER CHARGES AS TO LOBBYING AND TAX DODGING

In their individual capacities, the undersigned, John Stewart Bryan, Robert C. Bryan, Jonathan Bryan, J. St. George Bryan and Thomas J. Bryan, who are all the Messrs. Bryan, deem it proper to answer the allegations of W. A. Land, printed in the Blackstone Courier, June 27, 1913, which publication, by the first of these Messrs. Bryan, in the article referred to, is directly charged that the Messrs. Bryan plotted to rob the State of $25,000,000 by bill through the Legislature for the purpose of giving proper value to certain bonds owned by them, and that they employed lobbyists for that purpose.

These are the facts: The Messrs. Bryan, along with others, were interested in some Chesapeake and Ohio Canal bonds, which were then owned by their father, and which were acquired by their father and grandfather many years previous. Virginia had guaranteed the payment of the interest on these bonds, and the ultimate redemption of the principal of the bonds, which were then admitted as a just debt by the State, but its existence had been used by the Messrs. Bryan, as one of the items in the debt of Virginia claimed was due her by West Virginia.

Interested parties at first introduced a special bill for the payment of that portion of the State debt represented by these bonds, which was an undeniable promise of the State to pay its obligations.

The bill was introduced by and with the consent and approval of the Attorney-General, and the Assistant Attorney-General, and was passed upon by the House of Representatives, and also upon the earnest, voluntary and uncompensated suggestion and support of John C. Campbell, Treasurer, and Anderson, who had been chief counsel for Virginia in the debt settlement litigation, this bill was put in the form of an amendment to the general bill, which had already been introduced.

Full consideration by the subcommittee of the Finance Committee of the House, and upon the presentation of the bill, the House passed the bill, and the bill was approved by the subcommittee and by the Finance Committee, and passed the House and Senate without a dissenting voice.

As a matter of fact, at no time since the passage of this bill have the Messrs. Bryan, or any of them, alleged to have gained by this act. The object of this amendment to the general bill was solely to give to holders of guaranteed securities the right to go into court and determine their legal standing, without the State of any legal or equitable defenses to which it might have been entitled. The bondholders' success proved their claim in open court, then, and not until then, did the State agree to pay the bonds, as already provided for in the act relating to the public debt.

This act of the Legislature was not harmful to the State; it was not in derogation of the rights of any citizen; it was not a surrender of any privilege of the State; it was not a surrender of any right of the State; it was simply made it possible for its creditors to assert against her the same obligations which she had already assumed in the litigation against West Virginia.

In the same act it is also charged that the Messrs. Bryan have not only been tax dodgers, but have been tax dodgers. The Messrs. Bryan, however, have not only been tax dodgers, but have been tax dodgers. The Messrs. Bryan, however, have not only been tax dodgers, but have been tax dodgers.

The Messrs. Bryan, however, have not only been tax dodgers, but have been tax dodgers. The Messrs. Bryan, however, have not only been tax dodgers, but have been tax dodgers.

The Messrs. Bryan, however, have not only been tax dodgers, but have been tax dodgers. The Messrs. Bryan, however, have not only been tax dodgers, but have been tax dodgers.

The Messrs. Bryan, however, have not only been tax dodgers, but have been tax dodgers. The Messrs. Bryan, however, have not only been tax dodgers, but have been tax dodgers.
